

Knowing a need to trust in the Lord was part of the plan for Susan Long. Every year, she participates in the Avera Race Against Breast Cancer because it is such an emotional experience to see other breast cancer survivors and their support system bonding together. She credits faith, family and friends and a supportive medical team for her recovery. Her philosophy: cancer is a bump in the road – not a death sentence. It's a journey I didn't sign up for but I am winning the race!
